Bridgets.

—Badger Council, Royal Arcanum meet this evening.

—Wisconsin Lodge No. 14, I. O. O. F., occupy Old Fellows' hall this evening.

—The 85 class of the Janesville high school, with a few invited friends, enjoyed a pleasant time yesterday picnicking at Clear Lake.

—Notwithstanding the large number of teams in the streets today during the circus procession, we have no runaways or smash ups to note.

—The great crowd of people on the streets today was quite orderly, and so far as we have heard, no arrests were made for disorderly conduct.

—The remains of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Matheson, formerly residents of Janesville, were brought to this city yesterday afternoon from Chicago, and buried in Oak Hill cemetery.

—Mr. John M. Hicks, of Harmony, has purchased the home of Mr. R. M. Matheson, on Ranger avenue, third ward, the purchase price being $2,350.

The sale was negotiated through the agency of Mr. C. E. Bowles. We understand that Mr. Matheson and family will now remove to Dakota.

The children of the Presbyterian Sunday school, and many members of the society enjoyed a pleasant day yesterday, at Pope's Springs. While those remaining in the city were sweating under a broiling sun, or endeavoring to find comfort in the shade of buildings when the thermometer registered 96 degrees, these good people were enjoying a cool country breeze beside the sparkling brook, or resting in their cozy hammocks in the pleasant grove.

—We do not wonder that a republican horse would be frightened at the display of the Hendricks and Cleveland banner stretched across West Milwaukee street, but when it happens that a democratic horse, with a sound democratic master holding the lines, balks and absolutely refuses to pass under the banner, compelling its master to drive around another block to reach his shop, the authorities ought to vote the emblem an obstruction to the public streets, and order it removed.

—A heavy rain storm set in here between two and three o'clock this morning, continuing until about six o'clock. There was considerable wind, lightning and thunder, and a very heavy fall of rain. In consequence of the heavy rainfall, farmers were obliged to suspend operations in the harvest fields, and had a good opportunity to visit the city and see the circus, of which many took advantage. We hear of no serious damage as the result of the storm in this vicinity. Reports from the north, however, indicate that the wind did great damage. The meagre reports say that grain was leveled to the ground in many places along the line of the Northwest road, as far north as Oshkosh. At Fort Atkinson the wind was very strong, unroofing several buildings, and doing a vast amount of damage to grain fields. There are no reports of hail, which many feared would be the case.

Mr. L. H. Patterson, of Oshkosh, Ill. adds his testimony to the mass that is daily received acknowledging the virtues of Adolphors. He writes: "For the last five years I have been subject to severe attacks of rheumatism which would cause me the most excruciating pain in my chest. Was obliged to put myself under the treatment of a doctor, but he said he had heard of a new remedy for rheumatism, called Adolphors, and advised me to try it. I did so, and was relieved of all pain after taking one bottle."

Natural History.

"Do you like to fish?" This question was propounded to a lady in the First ward last evening, by a lady friend who was very much fascinated by the past time referred to.

"Oh yes," was answered, "I like to fish, but I never could bear to throw an innocent angelfish on a hook; the bones grate and crack so that it makes me shiver all over."

"Bones," replied the questioner, "Angie words don't have bones."

"Oh! Yes they do," was answered, "don't you suppose I know?"

"No, I don't; if your knowledge of fish is as extensive as your knowledge of angle worms, you wouldn't know a bull-head from a black bass."

"Well, I don't know much about fish, but I do know something about angle worms, and I tell you they are full of bones."

The last seen of the party who were digging out in the garden with a hoe, by moonlight, in search of specimens to settle the bouy question.

Hay Fever.

I have been afflicted for twenty years, during the months of August and September, with Hay Fever, and have tried various remedies without relief. I was induced to try Ely's Cream Balm; have used it with favorable results, and can confidently recommend it to all similarly afflicted. Robert W. Towley, (ex-Mayor) Elizabeth, N. J.

I have been a Hay Fever sufferer for three years; have often heard Ely's Cream Balm spoken of in the highest terms; and have taken much stock in it because of the many good medicines. A friend persuaded me to try the Balm, and I did so with wonderful success. This recommendation you can use for the benefit of Hay Fever sufferers. J. S. Geor, Syracuse, N. Y. Price 50 cents.

The Weather.

At seven o'clock this morning the thermometer registered 50 degrees above zero. Cloudy with south winds. At one o'clock p.m. the register was 51 degrees above zero. Partly cloudy with south wind. For the corresponding hours one year ago the register was 68 and 83 degrees above zero.

The Increasing Importance of New Orleans.

The rapidly increasing importance of New Orleans, as not only a business center but of social and intellectual development, is foreshadowed in the magnificent preparations being now perfected for the Great Industrial and Art exposition to be held there this autumn. The managers challenge the grandeur of the Centennial exposition at Philadelphia in 1876, and no visitor or exhibitor will neglect to visit the exposition, it is wise both before and during the exhibition time, to invest in the thoroughly magnificent Louisiana State Lottery, the next drawing of which will take place Tuesday, August 12. Any information can be had on application to M. A. Duval, New Orleans, La.

CAMPING OUT.

Incidents at Porter's Park, Geneva Lake.

Many people live and die without a knowledge of the benefits and enjoyment of camping out. This class of people have an idea that a tent is a necessity to a circus, and a source of amusement for children, but for staid and sober people, the tent, cloth walls and sky-lit roof, is altogether too frail a structure to be considered tenable for a single night. The fact and festive bug that stalks abroad by moonlight, seeking whom it may devour is always found on the fly leaf of their imagination; add to this the long list of mosquitoes, snakes, burglars and other reptiles, that usually loiter about a tent, and you have a picture vivid enough to keep this class of mortals boxed up in warm, close rooms, during the hot summer months, until life becomes a burden.

Imagine yourself on the shore of a beautiful lake, surrounded by twenty little white residences, occupied by as many families. Running down through the center of the camp is a wide-awake, little stream of bright spring water, so cold and clear, that its musical voice rings out the same familiar tune the twenty-four hours round. It is seven o'clock in the morning, and as you awake, after a long night of refreshing sleep, and emerge from your tent with a towel across your shoulder and a piece of ivory soap in one hand, and start for the lake, you are amused to note how many neighboring campers are out on the same mission. For a genuine, old-fashioned morning wash a nice warm bath room will do very well in cold weather, but with the mercury up among the nineties, a basin and a dishpail, you recognize as Mrs. Leavitt; they are just starting out to capture a black bass, and if you happen to be around at dinner time you will notice that the base has been taken unwares, and occupies a conspicuous place at the table. That small man just across the way in the hammock, is Mr. Ascher, the undertaker; just now he is undertaking to have a good time with his family. Will he succeed? Ask him. There is a party from Chicago, and there's a family from Ansonia. This large tent is where the Biasses hang out, and judging from the representation, they are all present. There is a party of children looking for the water like so many ducks, and the way they swim is good evidence that they are not only well, but well trained. The little propeller just steaming away from the dock, is the "Admiral," she is capable of carrying one hundred and fifty passengers at the rate of from twelve to fifteen miles an hour, and is competing for trade with a pool of three other steamers that have combined to run her out. That fleet of a dozen white sailboats just coming in sight represents the weekly regatta, and the half-dozen little steamers just in advance are the pleasure boats of some of the wealthy patrons at the other end of the lake.

The long play-stay is gone before you realize it, and as you sit in the twilight and look out across the blue sparkling water and note here and there, dotted either shore, the bright camp lights which serve as a pleasing back ground to the little fleet of row boats on the quiet surface of the lake, you are impressed with the idea that the day has been full of solid enjoyment.
